Cargese corsica travel guide

Day 2 stay in Ota & Porto: Poolside accommodation at Casa del Torrente, with the Porto River in the background Casa Del Torrente. If you're ready for some glamping, don't look for more than Casa del Torrente. You can also catch a ferry from the port cities of southern France or the neighboring islands. Fresh shrimp from U Pescadore in Porto Et voilà! → is my tried and true itinerary perfect for exploring Corsica's West Coast. Take a nap! Explore the town of Cargese (a 10-minute drive or a 45-minute walk up the hill). We like to visit in June when the weather is predictably cool, there are fewer tourists, and accommodation is more affordable. Hiking along the cliffs of Piana Piana has been officially named one of the most beautiful villages in France. Source: Instagram Creperie L'Arche - perched on the slope between two churches, this creperie has a beautiful garden terrace, friendly service and delicious savory galettes. → including the highlights and links to some useful guides below! At the top of the Plage de Ficaghjola, the hike Capo Rosso is the most well-known hike on the West Coast of Corsica. It's a fairly grueling circuit, but the view from the old lighthouse at the top is unbeatable. Les Calanques de Piana is a network of more than 23km of trails, but you can explore only a part of it. "It's time for sport!" Piana is famous for its striking copper-colored cliffs (called les roches rouges) and the numerous hiking trails surrounding them. Although, if you just want beach time, a long weekend will be the trick! I love the itinerary below because it gives you a bit of everything: beach, mountains, charming towns and villages. → the best of the west coast! Part 1: Relax on the beach of Cargese, you will start your trip on the beach of Cargese, a few hours north of Ajaccio by car. The river Le Porto and its natural beauty are right in your backyard. But if the fresh water doesn't do it for you, they also have a pool, giant outdoor rec room (for the kids) and fully-equipped cabins with outdoor kitchens & private balconies. The secluded Plage de Ficaghjola in Piana Les Roches Bleues is a casual restaurant perched on a cliffside overlooking the sea. The cliffs of Piana, on Corsica's West Coast I recommend four to five days in Corsica. It gives you time to settle in, relax, and explore some sights beyond the beach. Plan ahead and reserve a sunset dinner on the terrace at Chez Marie, a family-run restaurant specializing in local Corsican cheese. Yes, they specialize in meat, but the vegetarian cannelloni made with the local Corsican cheese is a must. You can't go wrong with either one. You can't beat this panoramic view! Casa Corsica. Right in the town of Piana, Casa Corsica specializes in Italian wood-fired pizzas, charcuterie, and gelato. I recommend the Chemin Muletiers (the old mule trail) for flat trails and epic views. Hotel Capo Rosso likes Les Roches Rouges, it's all about the views at Capo Rosso. From Paris, the flight is less than 2 hours. The Porto River in your backyard at Casa Del Torrente in Ota Les Gorges de Spelunca is one of the easiest trails in the region, it's mostly flat and runs all along the Porto River. On the beach of Ta Kladia has its own restaurant on-site with ocean views, fresh seafood (the mussels are a must), wood-oven pizza, and plenty of local wine. Where to eat in Porto There are many more dining options in the town of Porto, and a couple of our favorites were Le Palmier Porto, with all white furniture & garden seating, it feels a bit like the Greek Isles. Porto is a quiet old fisherman's village, with its sister village Ota situated in the hills above. If you're craving seafood and very small sand in your toes, head to Restaurant U Pescadore for the catch of the day. The beach is steps away, and the water is calm, clear and perfect for swimming. This part of the West Coast is picturesque, brushed and authentic (don't expect St. Tropez!) Where to stay in the loaded rooms overlooking Motel Ta Kladia, Cargese Don't let the "Motel" title fool you. Lunch in one of the pailottes (beach bars). These are the best options located: Sunset drinks at Les Roches Rouges at Piana Les Roches Rouges: The most breathtaking views of Piana can be seen from this historic hotel, perched on the cliffs overlooking the coast. Ficaghjola Beach: is quite windy on the way down, and kills on the way back (6 km round trip). But in the middle, you will be rewarded with a swim on the magnificent secluded beach of Ficaghjola. If you found something useful, I'd love to know: Feel free to leave a comment below! Happy Travel, My Friends. Right next door, Paillote 1768 is a little more elegant and refined. The hotel itself is quite old-fashioned, but I strongly recommend stopping for a drink on the terrace, ideally in the evening. The hosts are also incredibly friendly. We visited Corsica several times, and each trip brings us closer to the island, which I am sharing all the details here! If you like holidays that include a mix of beach relaxation, challenging excursions, breathtaking scenery and fresh local food, this is for you! Exploring the village of Cargese How to get there: To explore the west coast, you will want to fly to the capital city of Ajaccio. The trail starts right in the center of the city in Piana. Enjoy the coffee from your balcony facing the sea. Prices in Corsica are roughly similar to prices in Paris, hotels are close to €120-150 per night, while dinner for two (with drinks) is approximately €70-100 at most restaurants. Travel time: It will be sunny in Corsica from May to October, it has 2 other seafood restaurants nearby, just ten minutes walk to the beach. ... PAILLOTE A PIGHJA has placed beach atmosphere, fruity and copious dishes. And soon you'll understand why. Day 2 stay in Piana. Find modern and stylish hotels in Piana. You can park in the old stadium of Piana, and follow the directions from there. All rooms have a view of the beach in this simple hotel with a location. The gorges of Spelunca in the village of Ota Drive to the village of Ota, located on top of a hill, is incessantly picturesque and very small. Transportation on the island: To experience the best of Corsica, you need a car (and someone who sits in the driver's seat) way driving on winding, narrow and mountainous roads) Public transport is not very complete here, even in big cities and especially not in the smaller cities that all want to explore. But you will find invaluable views and decent amenities. The generation and many people in the hospitality industry speak some English, German or Italian too. But know some basic franc would be useful. Money and expenses: keep a supply of euros with you while traveling, as many local restaurants and businesses are only cash. This is the place to slow down and go into holiday mode. No matter how much or how little you do, you benefit from the scenery immediately. The peak season is July and August. A good place to try out the craft offerings of Corsica or pick up some gifts to take home. The rooms have everything you need to be self-sufficient: full kitchen, dining room, fashionable beds, modern baths and with views of the ocean all around. About 120 euros per night. What to do in Cargese: all about the beach! Take a morning walk or swim in the Mediterranean. The view from Paillote 1768 on Cargese beach. Getting to the island is quite simple. A quick flight from Paris choosing where to spend your precious vacation requires some practice. There are affordable regular flights from major cities in France. Language: French is the official language of Corsica. They have the best view in the center of Piana. Conduct more north of Piana to submerge more deeply in the natural beauty of Corsica. The hotel is quite normal, but the benefits (outdoor pool overlooking the coast) and the rooms with a terrace confer a touch of luxury. Planning a trip to Corsica can be discouraging for beginners. Le Yuka - A Bohemian Paradise with Seats in the Garden, Sea Views and Healthy Food Epicurie Leca - specialize in local cheese, sausages, wine and beer, beer.
