While alphabet blocks, stairs activity, or scrabble games help children absorb spellings fun way, the worksheets offer them a resource to practice this skill with all seriousness. This is sometimes important when you want the kid to concentrate on the core learning instead of getting carried away by the gameplay. But, are books the only solution? Actually no! Kids tend to stray away from books because of their monotonous nature. That is why I have designed some worksheets for kids so that your repertoire of practice material never dries up. Why worksheets to teach spellings to kids? Worksheets break the monotony of the learning process. These are easy to compile and searching questions in these for practice does not take much time. So, instead of going through the whole book, early learners can utilize more time in the actual process of learning spellings. Apart from saving time, the other benefits offered by spelling worksheets for kids are: Worksheets offer the most relevant practice material for teaching spellings to kids. Since these are designed in accordance with progressive learning patterns, which means basic things first, kids do not feel overwhelmed by them. Secondly, the worksheets provide hands-on material for checking the learning progress. For example, kids can check proficiency in phonemics or phonics exercises first, then move to the CVC concept of spellings and like-wise. Since worksheets are designed topic-wise, the teachers can easily identify the problem areas of the kid and can guide them to put more efforts to overcome shortcomings. Worksheets can be used as a competition material. Children can be asked to solve them the fastest possible. With more and more time-pressed practice sessions, the early learners can become more fluent in spellings. READ : 5 Important Levels of Phonemic Awareness Now that you have understood how worksheets help achieve proficiency in spellings, let me take you through the worksheets to practice spellings that cover various concepts of word-formation. You can also download the free printable pdf version of the worksheets by clicking the link given. Potential of spelling worksheets for kids I am sure you must have given the above worksheets to early learners to practice spellings, and hopefully, they enjoyed these. Often, users of these worksheets shared with me the positive changes they saw in kids. I share here a few important ones: Kids show improvement in their letter-sound association abilities They improved on the identification of phonetic cues, which further helped them read fluently Easy recognition and recall of orthographic patterns. It means they showed increase flexibility in representing the spoken word in written form. It also means you can find improvement in their dictation-taking assignments' scores. Worksheets significantly added to their knowledge of suffixes and prefixes and roots, and ultimately enhanced their words' structural knowledge. Ability to derive spelling from the meaning of words improved with worksheets that had problems like 'one-word substitution for phrases' Wrapping up, There is no denying the fact that teachers or parents need different practice materials to keep children curious or engaged in spellings class. If manipulatives, board games, and practice workbooks help make the whole curriculum more interesting, worksheets further add more flavor to engaging spelling-teaching methods. With so many options to provide, the teachers can work better towards stimulating the minds of early learners and help them become fluent in solving all types of spelling-based problems. Lily Pad Letters You'll need a large sheet of construction paper, a marker, and two players. Write the 26 letters of the alphabet and then cut out each letter in the shape of a lily pad. Then lay the lily pads out on the floor. To play, the first person must think of a word and read it aloud (start with simple three-letter words for younger kids). The second person must step on the letters to spell the word. 2. Stair Steps This easy spelling game helps your child memorize the way certain words are spelled. Ask them to write each word as if they are stairs, adding one letter at a time. You can do this on a piece of paper or use alphabet magnets. For example: BBaBasBaskBaskeBasket 3. Spelling Ball This game requires three or more players. Stand together in a circle with a ball. The first person must call out a word then toss the ball to another player. The catcher must spell out the word and then toss it to the next person with a new word. If a player gets stuck, they can pass on the ball to let someone else have a go. 4. Letter Clippings Help your child cut out different letters from a newspaper or magazine to spell different words. You can make your own list or use a list that matches their level in Reading Eggs (find this in the Spelling section). This activity lets them consider each letter carefully and individually, while creating visual representations as a helpful memory aid. There are 96 spelling lessons and hundreds of online spelling games that help your child build their skills as they play. Free trial 5. Scrambled Spelling You will need alphabet blocks, fridge magnets, or the letter clippings from the previous exercise. Take the letters of a word and scramble them for your child to put together in the correct order. You can make this game more fun by using a timer and getting multiple players involved! 6. Spelling Train Choose a word for your child to write down. Then, get them to write another word starting with the last letter of the first word, and so on. They can continue building their spelling train using the last letter of every word. For example: ToeEatTeaAntTin Fun Online Spelling Games for Kids The fun online spelling games in Reading Eggs builds your child's confidence for school in a highly interactive and engaging way.
