Almost everyone has used any version of IE 8, and you can be sure that all sites will endure you. What new functionality does IE 8 bring? Internet Explorer 8 includes two new main tools: one is Accelerators (previously known as Activities), and the other is Web Slices. One of them, the function 'suggested sites', recommends new sites that you may not know, based on your navigation historic. The return of the menu bar The Internet Explorer interface 8 has not changed much in relation to previous versions, except for a small detail. The menu bar is back and appears by pattern again. The main inconvenience is that all these options use Microsoft Windows Live services, which means you are attached to them. In relation to Internet Explorer Web Slices, these are a spy style RSS style tool that tracks the changes and updates of selected websites and keeps it informed about them.
